A Remarkable New Story

By MARAH ELLIS RYAN, author of "Told in the Hills," etc.

For the Soul of Rafael

WHEN a dashing, pleasure-loving Spaniard has a marriage "arranged" for him with a young woman he has never seen, a beautiful, saint-like girl of great devotion and piety, it is hardly reasonable to expect any happiness from such a union. A man like Rafael would scarcely be in sympathy with the amount of time his wife spent in prayer and the confessional. And his friends would scarcely be her friends. In a case like this there is always some one to catch the wandering eye of the indifferent husband.

Perhaps these elements do not seem to provide any novelty in plot-building. But that is because they are elements only, because it is not possible in a word to convey any adequate idea of the glowing picturesque quality of this romance of Old California, in which all the characters are of the fine aristocratic Spanish type. There is only one American. How much of a hero he is can be imagined when it is realized that he is able to offer Rafael's wife her only possibility of happiness, yet is strong and fine enough to hold them both to the line of duty. Possibly the reader will not think that Rafael's soul is worth the sacrifices made for it, but that is always so in affairs of this kind. There is some tragedy in the book, of course, but as a story it is wonderfully moving, and of absorbing interest from the very beginning. It is a romance of strong passions and a splendid renunciation that will appeal to a wide audience.

MRS. RYAN

UPON the appearance of the book has been lavished an amount of attention seldom accorded a book of fiction. It will be printed in two colors, with decorations of the most striking character. The illustrations are from a series of remarkable photographs taken under the direction of Mrs. Ryan, and are in no sense like the ordinary photographic illustrations, as they are printed in soft tones and mounted in on a background tint. The reputation of the publishers as makers of beautiful books is likely to be much enhanced by this notable production.

With unusual photographic illustrations and decorations in tint. Large 12mo, $1.50

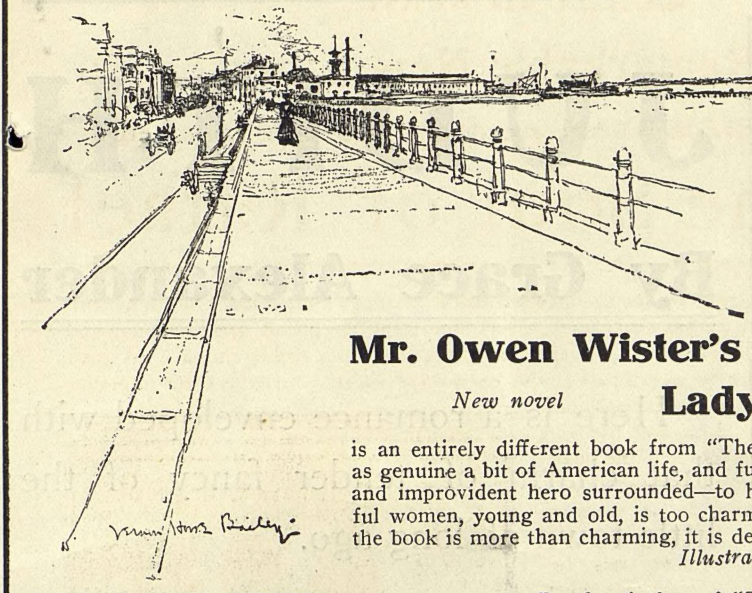
Two Notable New Novels



Ready
April Fourth

by the Author of
"The Virginian"

Mr. Owen Wister's

New novel Lady Baltimore

is an entirely different book from "The Virginian," but quite as genuine a bit of American life, and fully as alive. Its young and improvident hero surrounded—to his peril—with delightful women, young and old, is too charming to be missed; and the book is more than charming, it is deliciously witty, as well.
Illustrated freely, cloth, $1.50.

READY APRIL SECOND. By the Author of "The Pride of Jennico."

Mr. Egerton Castle's new novel If Youth but Knew is in his characteristic vein of pure romance. Few writers have such a gift of expressing radiant freshness, the atmosphere of a world still young. The illustrations by Mr. Launcelot Speed are in unusually close sympathy with the text, as they have been drawn under the direct supervision of the author and among the scenes of the story. Illustrated, cloth, $1.50.

The Life of John Wesley by C. T. Winchester

Professor of English Literature in Wesleyan University. Cloth, 8vo, $1.50 net (postage 15 cts.)

It is a truthful, vivid narrative of a personality of unusual power, one of the most prominent figures of the eighteenth century, one who for some thirty years probably exerted a stronger personal influence than any other man in England.

Grove's Dictionary of Music and Musicians New Edition

By SIR GEORGE GROVE. Revised and greatly enlarged edition, in five volumes, illustrated with plates and text cuts.
Vol. I. already issued. Vol. II., just ready. Cloth, 8vo, $5.00 net per volume

The Life and Writings of Benjamin Franklin Fourth Volume

Edited by ALBERT H. SMYTH, Professor of the English Language and Literature in the Central High School, Philadelphia. Limited Library Edition, in ten volumes, to appear at monthly intervals.
Volumes I.-III., previously issued. Volume IV., just ready. Cloth, 8vo, $3.00 net per volume

The first volume of the new work by Henry Charles Lea, LL.D.

A History of the Inquisition of Spain To be complete in four volumes

The author makes an uncommonly interesting contribution to the study of human history in his clear, illuminating account of how Spain developed from the most tolerant to the most intolerant of Christian countries. Of the disastrous outcome his later volumes will be the record.
Volume I. 620 8vo pages. $2.50 net (postage 22 cts.)

A Romance of the Candle Light Times

JUDITH

By Grace Alexander

Here is a romance enveloped with that charm of tender fancy of the little town of long ago.

The scene is the Ohio valley, a scene for romance and for love beneath warm skies intensely colored.

"Judith" is the sort of love story of which people never weary. Full of the warmth of feeling, beauty of style, and plot of human power that mark great literature.

DAVID M. PARRY'S ROMANCE OF SOCIALISM

The SCARLET EMPIRE

A young socialist by strange chance finds himself on the lost island of Atlantis under the sea. There a thoroughgoing social democracy is in active operation. He passes through enthralling adventures, has a passionate love affair, and learns by the way how ruinous to the state, how destructive to all the interests of life are the principles of socialism when carried to their logical conclusion. The Scarlet Empire will create a furore of discussion among its friends and enemies.

A Modern Romance of Great Charm

Maid of Athens

By Lafayette McLaws, author of "When the Land Was Young," etc. A highly romantic novel dealing with Lord Byron's career in Greece, and his love for the Greek girl, Thyrza, one of the most lovable characters in recent fiction. Illustrated by HARRY C. EDWARDS. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

Miss Ray's New Romance of Quebec

Hearts and Creeds

By Anna Chapin Ray, author of "On the Firing Line," etc. The strongest novel this talented author has yet written. It deals with the marriage of a Protestant girl with a Catholic, and gives a faithful picture of social and political life in Quebec. Illustrated by ALICE BARBER STEPHENS. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

An Important Historical Work

The Fight for Canada

A Sketch from the History of the Great Imperial War

By Major William Wood. Major Wood views the entire campaign in the aspect of a combined naval and military operation in which sea-power is now made to assume its proper relations to the British conquests. He takes a broad and statesmanlike view of events, and his brilliant work on the Battle of the Plains is rendered especially attractive by his skill in setting forth the situation and the freshness of his illustrations. With portraits, maps and battle plans. 8vo, cloth, $2.50 net.

The Book of Daniel and Modern Criticism

By Rev. Charles H. H. Wright, D.D. 8vo, cloth, $2.50 net.

BARBARA WINSLOW, REBEL

By Elizabeth Ellis

Genuine literary merit is a quality not too readily found in the novels of to-day. Yet upon merit and merit alone rests the unquestioned success of "Barbara Winslow." Even the most critical of critics in the land have succumbed to the charm of this captivating heroine and have written in her praise.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE AMERICAN NEWS COMPANY have added to their Library of Popular Fiction "The King of Honey Island," by Maurice Thompson, author of "Alice of Old Vincennes."

MCCLURE, PHILLIPS & CO. have on their list for early publication this spring "More Stories of Married Life," by Mary Stewart Cutting, whose earlier stories of suburban life, "Little Stories of Married Life" and "Little Stories of Courtship," have been so successful.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY, Philadelphia, have just published an important scientific work, "Electric Meters," by Henry G. Solomon; a volume on "Mining Law of the British Empire," by Charles J. Alford; also, a new edition of Chambers's "Cyclopædia of English Literature" in three volumes.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & CO. will publish on the 12th inst. Lady Henry Somerset's new novel, "Under the Arch," a story of London life during the time of the Anglo-Boer war; also, Una L. Silberrad's new story "Curayl." They will publish in April a work on "How to Make a Fruit Garden," by S. W. Fletcher.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish during the first week of April "Lady Baltimore," by Owen Wister, the author of "The Virginian," a charming and deliciously witty description of a phase of genuine American life different from that heretofore delineated by the author; also, a new novel by Egerton Castle, entitled "If Youth But Knew," written in the author's characteristic vein of pure romance, with illustrations by Launcelot Speed.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just ready the initial volume of their series of novelettes edited by W. D. Howells and H. M. Alden, entitled "Their Husbands' Wives." The volume bears, as is subtly indicated, upon an interesting phase of married life. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Abby Meguire Roach, Mark Twain, Emery Pottle, George Hibbard, and Grace Ellery Channing each present this theme according to their diverse interpretations of life, thus affording a refreshing novelty of effect.

A. C. MCCLURG & CO. will publish next month a new story by Marah Ellis Ryan, author of "Told in the Hills," etc., entitled "For the Soul of Rafael," a romance of "Old California," in which all the characters are of the fine aristocratic Spanish type, said to be "full of strong passion and a splendid renunciation." The illustrations are from a series of remarkable photographs taken under the direction of Mrs. Ryan, printed in soft tints and mounted on a background tint. They have also nearly ready a new book by Miss Tynan, entitled "Dick Pentreath," with illustrations by George Alfred Williams.

DODD, MEAD & CO. will publish on the 14th inst. a new novel by Cyrus Townsend Brady, entitled "The Patriots," a story of the war between the States, beginning with a chapter in the life of Lee and closing with a vivid description of the battle of Gettysburg, with illustrations in two colors by Walter H. Everett; "A Motor Car Divorce," by Louise Closser Hale, a clever automobile story, with thirty-six illustrations of such towns and scenes in the automobile journey as have never been referred to in other automobile stories, drawn by the author's husband; "Holland Described by Great Authors," by Esther Singleton, with a large number of illustrations; also, "Famous Introductions to Shakespeare's Plays, by the Notable Editors of the Eighteenth Century," edited, with a critical introduction and biographical and explanatory notes, by Dr. Beverly Warner, author of "English in Shakespeare's Plays," etc.

Judith La Monde's home was in Camden, a little town on the Ohio river. She returns to it after several years spent abroad, and reluctantly renews her engagement with Abel Troop, a young farmer she had promised to marry when a mere child. She meets a young Methodist minister in Camden, whose love for her makes it seem impossible for her to marry Abel. The story turns upon their struggle with their consciences and Judith's final marriage to Abel and its tragical outcome. The time is in the '50s in the days of crinoline. The gossip and homely events of village life make the story.

Author is a priest in the English Roman Catholic Church and also author of "The papal monarchy,"

"Ernest Renan," etc. Designed for hard-worked clergy, students and Catholic laymen who would acquaint themselves with the history and textual interpretation of the Bible. Opinions of Catholic commentators, particularly modern ones, are quoted and also of many non-Catholic scholars. The various books of the Bible are discussed in turn and there are copious foot-note references and a 7-page bibliography.

Bérard, Victor. British imperialism and commercial supremacy; tr. by H. W. Foskett. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1906. 10+298 p. O. cl., *$2.60 net.

A survey of the commercial and industrial situation in Great Britain by the Secretary of the Revue de Paris. Mr. Chamberlain is the subject of several chapters, and his impress upon economic and political problems is repeatedly emphasized. He is pictured as the representative Briton. The condition of England under Free Trade is described, and the gradual rise and progress of Protectionism, the natural outcome of Chamberlain's imperialistic theories. Causes for England's decrease in manufacturing, however, are ascribed to her lack of progressiveness in applying modern scientific methods to problems of manufacture and commerce after the manner of Germany. The author decries the effects of Imperialism.

Berman, H: Worshippers: a novel. N. Y., Grafton Press, [1906.] c. 272 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The "worshippers" are of the Russian Jewry of America, chiefly of New York and Philadelphia, who may be called the "Wandering Jews" of the intellect, people full of big aspirations for the average man. A physician, an author and an aspiring actress are the chief characters and they gather about them the "worshippers" of their pessimistic, optimistic and socialistic theories. Gives a fair view of the bohemian existence of these restless spirits whose kin are to-day in revolt in the Czar's domain.

Black, Mrs. Margaret Horton Potter, [Mrs. J: Donald Black.] The genius. N. Y., Harper, 1906. [Mr.] c. 5+449 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

A story of Russian life, based upon the career of a famous Russian composer. Ivan Gregoriev is the sensitive, gifted son of a powerful government official, chief of the Third Section in Moscow, a cruel, unscrupulous man, who breaks the heart of his wife, and after failing to bend Ivan to his wishes, disinherits him. Ivan goes through many trials before his final triumph as an artist. This is the first of the author's "Trilogy of destiny," three stories of Russian life, each complete in itself, but linked together by a supernatural theme.

Comstock, Seth Cook. Marcelle the Mad. N. Y., Appleton, 1906. [Mr.] c. 4+339 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Marcelle is a female Robin Hood at the head of a band of discontented tradesfolk who are robbing the rich and feeding the poor near where the Duke of Burgundy is holding his court. The story takes place in the time of Louis XI and Charles the Bold. The hero of the tale is in love with one of the young ladies of the Duke's court, and they plan an elopement against the Duke's will. The Duke intercepts them and exiles the hero, who wanders disconsolately into the woods. He is captured by Marcelle and her rough band, and she quickly falls in love with him. The climax is unexpected and very amusing.

An unsensational story of American country life, by the author of "In the morning glow." There are but a few characters—"Miss Primrose" being the devoted daughter of a superannuated divine, bard and scholar, who lives mostly in a chair wheeled about by his daughter, or read to by her. The story is a very slender one, but told with a great deal of tenderness. "Miss Primrose" has a love story in middle life, and there is a boy whose mind is filled with dreams of "Tom Brown at Rugby."

Pretence is the champagne standard in modern society—"the insincere, pretentious and frothy striving after one's little private unattainables;" also "to live up to the champagne standard you have to put your best foot foremost, and that foot is usually a woman's." This is the argument of the title essay of the book. Those that follow recount the experiences, pathetic and humorous, of an American woman exiled in England. She wrestles with the problem of finding and settling a house, of engaging servants, of entertaining. There are also chapters on more general topics, like Soft-soap, The plague of music, The electric age, The extravagant economy of women, Romance and eyeglasses, etc.

Powell, Frances, [Frances Powell Case.] The prisoner of Ornith Farm. N. Y., Scribner, 1906. [Mr.] c. 4+315 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

A young girl drifts out to sea in an open boat, off the New England coast, on the night of her betrothal to a man she loves, and is rescued by a strange man, who carries her to his home, "Ornith Farm," in Westchester Co., N. Y. This man, Rollis Lannion, although he had seen Hope Carmichael but twice in her girlhood, was deeply infatuated with her, and conceived an ingenious story to make her his own. He represents she is insane, that the name she claims is not her own, and keeps her a prisoner at the Farm for many weeks. Lannion is a man of mystery; his home is isolated and filled with strange people, the heroine going through a series of thrilling events. By the author of "The house on the Hudson."

The author is professor of clinical gynecology in the University of Cincinnati (Medical College of Ohio). This treatise is reprinted from Maryland Medical Journal, December, 1905. He thinks after time has adjusted conditions of emigration and amalgamation of races there will be the re-establishment of the Aryan family on American soil and that Anglo-Saxon civilization will be perpetuated along present lines. He does not fear declining birthrate. He thinks it makes for finer types that will insure the survival of the fittest. He calls upon physicians to do their whole duty in instructing their patients in their great duties towards a vigorous, cultured American family with high ideals of right living.

A clever study of an unusual character is presented in the person of Gavan Palairet. He comes from India to "Kirklands" in Scotland when a boy of fourteen to some aunts and uncles to regain his health. His playmate here is his cousin Eppie. An ideal picture is given of the summer they are together. Then Gavan goes off to school and to the guardianship of another uncle, spending years in preparing for public life. Only after sixteen years do he and Eppie meet again. Gavan has a strange mystical element in him that seems to belong to India, which brings oftener suffering than happiness to those who know him. It is his story and Eppie's throughout.

The author is lecturer in ancient history in University College, London. The thought of the Greeks and the things done in Greece have proved of exceptional importance in the later history of mankind, and the editor of the series has on this ground felt justified in including in the series, in addition to the outline history by Prof. Harrison, a second narrative, written from a somewhat different point of view. Another volume is to follow this designed to sketch the fortunes of Greece after its period of greatness.

Here the author lays stress upon the political, intellectual and artistic achievements of the Greeks rather than on the history of military operations.

In "Brown of Moukden" he has chosen the later incidents of the war, and as seen from the Russian side, as a background to his hero's adventures. Jack Brown and his father are Englishmen doing business in Moukden. A jealous competitor accuses Mr. Brown, senior, of giving information to the Japanese, and he is deported—where. Jack does not know, he himself being ordered to leave the country. He endeavors to find his father and has many novel edventures.

Swedenborg, Emanuel. The heavenly arcana disclosed which are in the sacred Scripture or word of the Lord, here those which are in Exodus together with wonderful things seen in the world of spirits and the heaven of angels, originally published in Latin at London, A.D. 1751. Mr. Watkins has brought together nearly 400 titles, leaving out works relating to Franklin, already indexed in Ford's "Bibliography of Franklin," and the catalogues of special collections in Boston, Philadelphia and Washington, also already indexed. The work is conscientiously done and will serve as a good basis for a more comprehensive work.

Winchester, Caleb Thomas. The life of John Wesley. N. Y., Macmillan, 1906. [F.] c. 13+301 p. por. O. cl., $1.50 net.

The author, who is professor of English literature in Wesleyan University, says a word of justification for adding another to the already numerous lives of John Wesley. "The early biographers—except Southey—and most of the later ones have written as Methodists for Methodists," he says. Further, "With that great religious movement of which Wesley was the leader, I have the most hearty sympathy: but I have endeavored to consider his work without narrowing denominational bias, and have emphasized certain important phases of his character that have often received comparatively little attention. Wesley was, indeed, primarily the religious reformer; but he is surely to be remembered not merely as the Methodist, but as the man—a marked and striking personality, energetic, scholarly, alive to all moral, social and political questions, and for some thirty years probably exerting a greater influence than any other man in England.

Wintle, Harold. The cleansing of the "Lords." N. Y., J: Lane, 1906. 5-296 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

An ingenious story tells of an act passed by the English Parliament, providing that each year seven peers, failing to prove of true value to their country, should be put out of the House of Lords and seven fine patriots chosen to fill their places. Amidst the endless discussions to which this scheme led, the attention was diverted and another act was passed almost unnoticed relating to investments in ivory in South Africa and the floating of a great swindling corporation. The "Cleansing of the Lords" leads to other cleansings also. The criticism of present English methods savors of Dickens in humor and sarcasm.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

The Library Supply Co., 181 Queen Victoria Street, London, will publish immediately "A Manual of Descriptive Annotation for Library Catalogues," by E. A. Savage and E. A. Baker, librarians respectively of Bromley and Wallasey, England. To no small extent the manual will be a reflection of the practice in England.

Houghton, Mifflin & Co. will publish this spring in their series of bibliographies of American authors, initiated last year with the publication of Miss Nina E. Browne's excellent "Bibliography of Nathaniel Hawthorne," a "Bibliography of James Russell Lowell," compiled by George Willis Cooke, editor of the Riverside edition of the "Poetic and Dramatic Works of Robert Browning," and the author of a number of other works. They have also in press the first complete "Bibliography of the Writings of Henry James," from his earliest published story in 1865 to the present time, compiled by Le Roy Phillips, who has prepared adequate notes for most of the titles. Besides all first and subsequent editions, Mr. Phillips has also included all uncollected and anonymous writings, and the complete index will be of great service to librarians, booksellers, collectors and general readers.

The Macmillan Company have just brought out a "Bibliography of Philosophy, Psychology and Cognate Subjects," by Dr. Benjamin Rand of Harvard University. The work consists of seven distinct and complete bibliographies, namely, the History of Philosophy, Systematic Philosophy, Logic, Aesthetics, Philosophy of Religion, Ethics and Psychology. The work, while it does not claim to be exhaustive, aims to be comprehensive. From beginning to end the endeavor has been to preserve in the amount of material, as governed by a work of the present size, an octavo of nearly 1200 pages, the relative importance of authors and subjects. The absence in the bibliography of explanatory comment on books has been compensated for by numerous references to important critical reviews of them by specialists. Throughout the bibliography references to articles contained in the foreign and English periodicals are given along with the literature of books, and this information has been obtained by a direct examination of nearly all the philosophical journals. The endeavor has been to make this work as far as possible an international bibliography, and, apart from running titles and subject headings, as a rule no preference has been shown to the English language. Since the titles of the books are in the language in which they originally appeared, the bibliography will in every country be equally serviceable. (xvi+1192 p. imp. 8°, cl., $10 net.)

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MARCH 10, 1906.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE BEGINNING OF PRINTING IN ENGLISH AMERICA.

IT is curious that no writer who has thus far treated of the beginning of printing in the American colonies has enlarged upon the fact that at the psychological moment the introduction of printing into English America was due quite as much to the good sense and enterprise of a woman as it was due to the ingenuity of the man who worked the press. It is no doubt true that, in 1638, as we reckon years, when the widow of Joseph Glover, rector of Sutton, Surrey, England, set up her late husband's printing plant at Cambridge, in the Massachusetts Colony, she knew practically nothing of the art of printing; but neither did Stephen Daye, the locksmith, who thus far has alone borne the credit of having been "the first that set upon printing," nor his "three men servants," that is, his apprentices. All connected with the enterprise that was launched by the ambitious dissenting clergyman, Mr. Glover, who died on the journey over sea, were in the end obliged to learn the trade after they reached this country, though we can imagine that Daye, who was used to the handling of tools, was helped materially in learning the new trade, and so had an advantage over his employer and assistant. As it was, the printing done by Daye, and his immediate successor, was always so inferior that for years after printing was first introduced in the colony manuscripts were not infrequently sent to England for publication. Therefore, whatever credit may belong to Daye, the foreman and artificer of the shop, some credit should also be given to the promoter of the enterprise who at a critical moment might have become hysterical or otherwise unreasonable and so have delayed the introduction of printing into the colonies for some years, if not decades, longer.

Though Daye had official recognition and some small reward from the General Court—"300 acres of land where it may be convenient, without prejudice to any town"—his relations with the owners of the press were, it would seem, anything but agreeable. These employers were first the relict of Mr. Glover, and then, after 1643, Mrs. Glover's second husband, Henry Dunster, the first president of Harvard College, at whose house the press was set up at a "very early date," very likely from the start. Certainly, Daye does not seem to have been paid good wages, because at various times he was embarrassed by debt, and one time, at least, was taken into custody by order of the General Court, presumably for debt, and was obliged to give bonds to the amount of £100 in order to obtain his release.

The fact that in no case does the name of Stephen Daye appear in connection with the imprint of his publications may point to jealousy between the owners of the press and their workman. His son's name, Matthew Daye, is given on the title page of an almanack for 1647, by which time, it is presumed, his father had resigned the place or had been deposed from it, in which case Matthew, following his father, would have been, in point of time, the second printer of New England. But unfortunately Matthew died two years later—on May 10, 1649—and we have no definite information in regard to him. Stephen Daye died on October 17, 1658, in a house now marked by a stone tablet, at the southwestern corner of Massachusetts Avenue and Dunster Street (Harvard Square), Cambridge.

Regarding the first work of the Cambridge Press, interestingly and comprehensively described by Robert F. Roden in a work recently published by Dodd, Mead & Co.,* circumstantial evidence points to "The Freeman's Oath," printed on a half sheet of paper, of which no copy has been rescued, and which we know only by a contemporary reprint dated 1647. The next two issues of the Cambridge Press appear to have been Pierce's

*FAMOUS PRESSES: The Cambridge Press, 1638-1692, a history of the first printing press established in English America, together with a bibliographical list of the issues of the press. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1905, c. 194 p. il. sq. 12°, bds.

"Almanack," the first issue of which, according to Governor Winthrop, was printed in 1639 and the second in 1640. No copy of either issue has ever been discovered. The compiler of this "Almanack" was Captain William Pierce, born in England in 1590, and it is supposed that he continued his work until the advent of the third printer, Samuel Green, or about the year 1649. The earliest extant example of Pierce's "Almanack" known to collectors is the one for 1646, now in a private library in New York City.

The first book, if there should be any doubt that the first three issues of the press referred to were books in the commonly accepted sense of the term, was "The Whole Book of Psalmes," popularly known to-day as "The Bay Psalm Book," published in 1640. Though neither printer's name nor place of printing appear on the title-page, it is accepted by all authorities as unquestionably the work of Stephen Daye—done some time between 1639 and 1640, the imprint on the title-page being simply "Imprinted 1640." Of this book only ten copies are now known to be in existence, the history of which is minutely traced by Mr. Roden.

Lack of space prevents our tracing the further work of the Cambridge Press under the direction of Samuel Green and Marmadake Johnson, until 1692, when printing in "our Cambridge" came to an end. For an account of this work we must refer our readers to Mr. Roden's exhaustive and readable history of the Press, which, besides, contains a bibliography of the 204 titles issued by the Cambridge Press during the fifty-four years of its existence. With the retirement from the Cambridge Press of the elder Green and the removal to Boston of his son, Bartholomew, "Cambridge, which for thirty-seven years was the only town in English America which contained a printing press, was no longer our chief home of typography, slumbering typographically until the American Revolution."

FOX, DUFFIELD ABSORB THE BOOK PUBLISHING BUSINESS OF H. S. STONE & CO.

Announcement is made of the merging of the publishing houses of Herbert S. Stone & Company, Chicago, and Fox, Duffield & Company, of New York. The New York firm has purchased the entire goodwill, assets, plates, sheets and publishing plant of the Stone Company, whose publications will henceforward be catalogued in Fox, Duffield & Co.'s list. The House Beautiful, edited by Herbert S. Stone, will be directed as heretofore in Chicago.

This combination places Fox, Duffield & Company in the front rank of the younger houses, with a large proportion of standard and successful works.

Herbert S. Stone & Company succeeded in 1896 to the firm of Stone & Kimball, founded in 1893. They were unusually fortunate from the start in "discovering" new authors with successful books. Among these have been George Barr McCutcheon, author of the Graustark volumes, George Ade, Hobart Chatfield Taylor, H. K. Viele and others. Among authors of longer-established reputation are Henry James, George Bernard Shaw, George Moore, Maeterlinck, Ibsen, H. G. Wells, Octave Thanet, David Swing, William Sharp and "Fiona McLeod," Robert Hichens, Harold Frederic, Norman Hapgood, Clyde Fitch, Egerton Castle, Robert Herrick and others. Probably the most important undertaking of the Stone house was the great definitive edition of the works of Edgar Allan Poe, edited by George E. Woodberry and Edmund Clarence Stedman. A success of another kind was the furore created a year or two ago by the publication of the remarkable book in which the young woman called Mary MacLane professed to give an unbiased account of herself.

The firm of Fox, Duffield & Company was founded three years ago by R. K. Fox and Pitts Duffield, of New York. Mr. Duffield, who received his training with Charles Scribner's Sons, is the active manager of the business. Mr. Fox was formerly connected with R. H. Russell, whose business was later absorbed by Harper & Brothers.

IN THE INTEREST OF SOUND LITERATURE.

"Ten years ago," writes George Iles to the Library Journal, "the Hon David A. Wells was writing on the principles of taxation. One day in his study at Norwich, Conn., I saw a chapter undergoing revision. A dozen sets of proofs had been sent to a round of economists, historians, teachers and men of business, each noting amendments and suggestions. One correction on a point of fact was of particular importance; to secure it was well worth the trouble involved in sending out the series of proofs. Said the venerable author, 'It is a good plan to get criticisms before you go to the stereotyper.'

"A capital example of the same kind appears in the 'College Algebra' recently published by Ginn & Company. Its author, Professor H. B. Fine, of Princeton, began work in 1898, when proofs were struck off to be passed round for correction and suggestion, as well as for class-room tests. When these were returned, their places were taken by revises which followed one another for six years, so that much of the book has been rewritten several times. On all hands the consensus of mathematical teachers is, 'this is the work we have been waiting for.' Its author's method of patient crystallization, of enlisting competent co-operation, would give us fewer books than to-day pour from the presses, but they would be books of mark, because criticism had been heard before instead of after publication."

MRS. MARY WILKINS-FREEMAN STIRS METUCHEN.

THE best society of the borough of Metuchen, near New Brunswick, N. J., according to a correspondent of the New York Times, believes that Mrs. Mary Wilkins-Freeman, the author, has portrayed in her latest novel, "The Debtor," some well-known persons of the borough. The scenes of the book, they are sure, are laid in New Jersey, and Metuchen people think Mrs. Freeman intended to describe places in and about the little borough

One of the principal characters in "The Debtor" is a good-natured and cultivated "dead beat," and the guesses at his identity have not increased Mrs. Freeman's popularity with some of the townspeople.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THE centenary of the birth of Elizabeth Barrett Browning occurred this week, the poetess having been born on March 6, 1806, at Coxhoe Hall, Durham. A movement is on foot to place a national memorial in Westminster Abbey.

THE centenary of the birth of Charles Lever takes place on August 31. Lever was born in Dublin, and died at Trieste, June 1, 1872. Some time before 1832 Lever is said to have come to America and to have lived with the Indians and gone through some of the adventures afterwards utilized in "Con Cregan" and "Arthur O'Leary."

OBITUARY NOTES.

PATRICK O'SHEA.

PATRICK O'SHEA, one of the best-known Catholic publishers in this country, died suddenly on March 3, at his home in Summit, N. J. Mr. O'Shea was born in Kilkenny, Ireland, March 17, 1832. His early education was had under the auspices of his uncles, the late Rev. Thomas O'Shea and the Very Rev. Canon Robert O'Shea.

He left Ireland, coming to this country in his nineteenth year, arriving here in the spring of 1851, and within a short time thereafter obtained a position with Dunigan Brothers, the then leading Catholic publishers. After three years in their employ, on September 13, 1854, Mr. O'Shea began business for himself at 739 Broadway.

During the fifty-two years that his business has been established he published a great number of Catholic story, school, and standard books. He was author and editor, as well as publisher, of the "Comprehensive Geographies" and most of the other series of his text books. In his first twenty years of business, besides the publication of over 200 other books he republished the "History of the Church," by Darras; Lingard's "History of England," Cardinal Wiseman's complete works, Lacordaire's complete works, and other notable books, but the gigantic task of republishing Digby's "Ages of Faith" he considered his greatest achievement.

During the Civil War Mr. O'Shea was an earnest advocate of the cause of the Union, both by word and pen. His letters signed "An American Citizen" published in the Boston Pilot and the Dublin Nation during the early years of the war excited much interest.

Owing to his failing sight and less robust health Mr. O'Shea for the last few years had been less active in business, and for some time just preceding his death made only occasional trips to the city.

HENRY JOSEPH RUGGLES, author of "The Method of Shakespeare as an Artist" and "The Plays of Shakespeare Founded in Literary Forms," died on March 6 at his home in New York. He was born in Poughkepsie, N. Y., August 1, 1813. He and his brothers, Samuel B. and Philo T. Ruggles, secured Union Square to New York City, founded Gramercy Park, laid out and named Lexington Avenue, and did much to further the building of the Erie Canal and the Erie Railroad.

BUSINESS NOTES.

DES MOINES, IA.—The Iowa School Publishing Company has been incorporated under the same style.

EMPORIA, KAN.—Mason W. McCarty, bookseller, has been succeeded by the Eckdall-McCarty Book and Stationery Company.

HARTFORD, CONN.— Smith & Nettleton have just opened up a book and stationery store on Asylum Street. The head of the new firm is J. G. Smith, formerly of Smith & McDonough, stationers, of this city.

MATTOON, ILL.—F. C. Hill, bookseller, has been succeeded by Paul Ramser.

NEW YORK CITY.—A. S. Barnes & Co. are removing their publishing business to Nos. 11 to 15 East Twenty-fourth Street.

PARIS, TEX.—Campbell & Bedford, booksellers, have sold out to Bedford & Crock.

SALIDA, COLO.—Hull & Wise, booksellers, have sold out.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y.—Charles P. Penfield, bookseller at 508 Broadway, it is reported, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, giving his liabilities as $6,098.27 and his nominal assets as $5,833.53.

WATERTOWN, N. Y.—W. H. Halladay, bookseller, died recently.

PERSONAL NOTES.

THE spring hegira of publishers and editors is well under way. George P. Brett is in London, and also J. H. Sears, of Appletons', and representatives of other houses. Cyrus Curtis, president of the Curtis Publishing Company, Dr. Lyman Abbott and Ripley Hitchcock have sailed this week for a cruise in the West Indies.

K. W. BARRY who had charge of the Bureau of Quotations at the American News Company, and before that had been business manager of the Catholic Publication Society, has severed his connection with the American News Company and has associated himself with Bloomingdale Brothers, Third Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, New York City.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

HINDS, NOBLE & ELDREDGE have secured the stock and publishing rights of Murphy's "Flashlights on American History," a supplementary reader for use in public schools, formerly published by R. L. Myers & Company.

FRANCIS D. TANDY COMPANY, 30 East Twenty-first Street, New York City, desire to inform the trade that the price of their pamphlet "Abraham Lincoln: an Appreciation," is twenty-five cents, not fifty as first announced by them.

SINCE it was announced that Henry Holt is the author of "Sturmsee" and "Calmire" there has been such a general inquiry for these much-talked-of novels that the new editions are already exhausted and the books have been again sent to press.

B. W. DODGE & Co., New York, will publish on the 24th inst. "My Lady Cinderella," by Mrs. C. N. Williamson, co-author of "The Lightning Conductor," etc., with a frontispiece in four colors by Malcolm Strauss. They will bring out in April "The Tysons," a story by May Sinclair, author of "The Divine Fire," etc., also with a frontispiece in colors by Malcolm Strauss.

A. C. MCCLURG & Co. have in preparation an edition of George Eliot's "Romola," translated into Italian and edited by Dr. Guido Biagi, of the Laurentian Library in Florence. Dr. Biagi has unexpectedly discovered the original cards of all the books studied for the story by George Eliot in the National Library in Florence. These books, with their ancient views of Florence, gave to her the first idea of the scenes of the novel.

THE STATIONERS' READY RECKONER Co., 377 Broadway, New York City, will publish at once a new directory for retail stationers to be entitled "The Stationers' Ready Reckoner." The book will be published four times a year, and will give the names and addresses of the manufacturers of staple goods or ordinary stock for stationers, the manufacturers of the latest and best novelties of all descriptions that could be profitably handled by stationers, and the principal jobbers who supply the stationers.

IN preparation for the Lenten Season, there have been recently published by Thomas Whittaker, several volumes by the Rev. Dr. Mortimer, of Philadelphia, including "Life and Its Problems," a series of sermons for Lent; "The Church and the Good Samaritan," by the Rev. Frank N. Westcott, author of "Catholic Principles"; a new volume of sermons by the Rev. W. R. Huntington, D.D., Rector of Grace Church, New York, and several special works adapted for use at Services on Good Friday.

A FIRST edition of Thoreau's first book, "A Week on the Concord and Merrimack Rivers," containing the original printer's notes, sold in New York at auction recently for $105. The Manuscript edition of Thoreau's complete works, in twenty volumes, now being published by Houghton, Mifflin & Co., contains fourteen volumes of Thoreau's Journal which are in every respect a first edition, and will doubtless soon be at a premium. The publishers report that two-thirds of the edition is already subscribed for.

BAKER & TAYLOR Co. have just ready "Hazel of Heatherland," by Mabel Barnes-Grundy, a story of exceptional romance and charm; "Folly," by Edith Rickert, of Vassar, Folly being the nick-name of the heroine and the keynote of her life's actions; "The Country Town," by Wilbert L. Anderson, dealing with the problems of rural settlements that have followed the introduction of machinery; and "Landscape Painting and Modern Dutch Artists," by E. B. Greenshields, a concise history of the art from the thirteenth century to the recent French "Impressionists" and the modern revival in Holland.

B. W. HUEBSCH, New York City, publishes to-day Dr. Otto Pfleiderer's important work on the "Christian Origins," in which the author shows what Christians ought to know and think about the beginnings of their religion, and in which he presents the viewpoint of modern historical science, above all, however, leading them to distinguish between the ephemeral and the permanent truth in Christianity. Mr. Huebsch will bring out later "The New Art of an Ancient People: the Work of Ephraim Moses Lilien," by M. S. Levussove, of the Art Department of the College of the City of New York. The book deals with the personality and accomplishments of one of the most brilliant and original artists of Europe, whose drawings in black and white for Jugend and other periodicals, and illustrations to books dealing with Jewish subjects, have been the theme of laudatory monographs by foreign critics. In America Lilien is unknown except to a small circle. Mr. Levussove has viewed Lilien's art not only from the standpoint of the professional critic, but also as an expression of the new spirit developed in the Jewish people by the Zionist movement.

THE LITERARY COLLECTOR PRESS, Greenwich, Conn., has just brought out an artistic volume on "Old Wall Papers," by Kate Sanborn, dealing with the elaborate papers with which our colonial ancestors decorated the walls of their homes. Few houses containing these old papers have survived, and, save for a few casual references in books and a few magazine articles, the subject has no literature. Miss Sanborn's work, therefore, practically for the first time treats this interesting subject comprehensively, indeed as fully as it probably ever will be treated. Not only are the wall coverings of our immediate ancestors on American soil studied, but the author also traces the historical development of wall-paper making from its invention in the early days of Oriental industry down through the many uses that European culture and commerce found for it, until its beauty and serviceableness as wall coverings caused it nearly to supersede the tapestries and frescoes of the time. The work is a very handsome production typographically and reflects creditably on the resources of the Literary Collector Press. The text is illustrated with nearly one hundred plates, some in colors, and the end papers are copied from the paper of Governor

Gore's billiard room at Waltham, Mass. The regular edition is limited to 975 copies, and the special Collector's edition is limited to 75 copies and contains special illustrations.

G. W. Dillingham Company will publish shortly an interesting book entitled "Party Leaders of the Time," by Charles Willis Thompson, containing character studies of public men at Washington with thirty-two portraits of the most prominent characters mentioned. They have in preparation "The Story of Paul Jones," by Alfred Henry Lewis, the author of "The Wolfville Stories," now appearing in the Cosmopolitan Magazine; "The Bottom of the Well," by Frederick Upham Adams, author of "John Burt," etc., a story brimful of mystery; "Tonio, Son of the Sierras," a new story of frontier life, by General Charles King; "Lady Jim of Curzon Street," a new story by Fergus Hume, depicting frivolity and its deadening effects on the devotees of fashion; "A Common Sense Hell," by Arthur Richard Rose, being the practical thoughts of a business man about the future fate of the wicked, contained in letters to his son; "Below the Dead Line," a collection of detective stories by Scott Campbell; also, "Chip of the Flying U," by B. M. Bower. They have purchased from the Federal Book Co. the right to publish "Katherine's Sheaves," by Mrs. George Sheldon Downs, and now have in press the 30th thousand. "Katherine's Sheaves" is not only a charming piece of fiction, but stands as one of the strongest books ever written in praise of Christian Science. It will be followed in the autumn by another work on similar lines entitled "Step by Step." To say "by the author of 'Katherine's Sheaves'" will be sufficient to insure for it large advance orders.

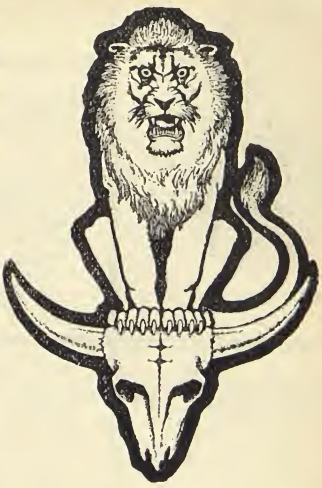
RE: THE JUNGLE

The Unforgettable Book of 1906



The papers call
"THE JUNGLE"
"Monumental"
"Hysterical"
"Radical"
"Strong"
"Daring"
"Dramatic"
"Crude"
"Admirable"
"Inartistic"
"Compelling"
"Morbid"
"Great"
"Unsatisfactory"
"Terrific"
"Zolaesque"
"Overdrawn"

Two weeks after publication—

You can tell a good deal about the future prospects of a book. We published "THE JUNGLE," by Upton Sinclair, on Monday, February 26th.

Since then we have received re-orders for over 1,200 copies and first orders for many more. We have sold 10,000 copies and the book has received astonishing notices both in the Editorial and Literary columns. Extravagant praise and virulent abuse have been lavished on it.

For instance: "Those who are capable of judging such things cannot but say that THE JUNGLE is a genuine work of genius," says the Louisville Times.

"One of the most daring and in many respects remarkable novel in several years."—St. Louis Republic.

The New York Evening Post, on the other hand, in a scathing review of a column length, says: "It is lurid, overdrawn, almost hysterical in tone. Yet there is a sort of crude strength that is almost convincing."

Have you had your supply yet? If not, send us your order. We believe that this great story of Chicago will be a large seller.

In spite of the array of adjectives—we state again that we printed this book only when we were satisfied by legal advice and investigation that the material statements contained in it were true.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. Henry Holt has at last acknowledged the authorship of CALMIRE and STURMSEE.

These two brilliant novels have caused more discussion than perhaps any other anonymous work published in the last quarter of a century.

The two volumes have been thoroughly revised, partially rewritten, and are now offered for sale at the usual price for fiction, $1.50 each, by

THREE Book-Trade Helps

Annual American Catalog, 1905

We will publish in March the "Annual American Catalog, 1905," which will contain in one alphabet the monthly lists of books recorded in The Publishers' Weekly during 1905, by author, title, subject, and series entries; also, in one (author) alphabet, the full titles, with descriptive annotations from the "Weekly Record" of The Publishers' Weekly from January 1st to December 31st, 1905. Besides these lists the volume, which is practically the first supplement to the "American Catalog" for the five years ending December 31, 1904, will contain a full directory of publishers issuing books during 1905, statistics, etc.

The very latest catalog, as a rule, is the one most frequently consulted by the bookseller, hence the pronounced utility and value of this bibliography.

Octavo, containing over 700 pages, substantially bound in cloth. Price, $3.00 net. (Postage 35 cents.)

The edition being printed from type and limited, we solicit early orders.

The English Catalogue, 1905

The "English Catalogue of Books for 1905," for which we have the American sale, will be published earlier than usual this year. We will have it ready for delivery next week. 8vo, cloth binding, $1.50 net. (Postage 13 cents.)

The two catalogs—American and English—will be sold separately, not bound together in one volume.

The Annual Library Index, 1905

Including Periodicals, American and English; Essays, Book Chapters, etc., with Author-Index, Bibliographies, Necrology and Index to dates of Principal Events. Edited by W. I. FLETCHER and H. E. HAINES. 8vo, cloth binding, $3.50.

A Useful Work of Reference for Bookseller, Librarian, and the General Reader

THE ANNUAL LIBRARY INDEX contains: (1) The Index to Periodical literature for the year 1905, making the fourth annual supplement to "Poole's Index to Periodical Literature," 1897–1902; (2) An index to essays and book-chapters in composite books of 1905, making the fifth annual supplement to the new edition of Fletcher's "A. L. A Index to General Literature," published in 1901; (3) An author index, both to periodical articles and to book-chapters; (4) A list of bibliographies issued in 1905; (5) A necrology of authors for 1905, extremely useful to catalogers; (6) An index of dates of events in 1905, furnishing a useful guide to the daily press.

We desire to announce to the trade the following new books, and solicit your order for the same:

THE FIELD OF GLORY

12mo, 320 pages. Cloth bound, $1.00. By HENRYK SIENKIEWICZ. Translated from the Original Polish by HENRY BRITOFF.

This is the latest and one of the strongest books of this great author, and we are certain that it will have a large sale. The translator is one of the best in this country, and gives to the American people as nearly as possible the exact ideas and sentiments as expressed by the author.

"SLICES FROM A LONG LOAF"

12mo, 250 pages. Cloth bound, $1.00. With 30 full-page illustrations. By H. C. STIEFEL, Ph.D.

This is an interesting and highly entertaining story of a trip of a party of men down the Allegheny River from Oil City to Pittsburgh, and while it contains a great amount of valuable information, it also contains a greater amount of wit and humor than has been issued recently in any book. The manuscript contained so much not only of general interest and information, but of real genuine wit and humor not found elsewhere, that ANDREW CARNEGIE made a liberal contribution to the author to enable him to issue the first edition, and this was exhausted in a few days after publication. There is no doubt but that this is a "winner," and will sell anywhere.

NEW PLAY BOOKS

We also announce for immediate issue the following Play Books issued in lithograph paper cover. Retail price, 25 cents each.

77. MR. BLARNEY FROM IRELAND. By Charles E. Blaney.
78. THE STORY OF "SCOTTY," KING OF THE DESERT MINE. By Charles A. Taylor.
79. AS YE SOW. By Rev. John Snyder.
80. THE DUEL. By George Morehead.
81. LURED FROM HOME. By Grace Miller White.

NEW JOKE BOOKS

We also desire to announce the issue of the following new Joke Books. Retail price, 10 cents each.

60. TWELVE KENTUCKY COLONEL STORIES.
61. YOUR HAND'S YOUR FORTUNE.
62. "HERE'S TO YE"; or, TOASTS FOR EVERYBODY.
63. WEBER AND FIELDS' FUNNY SAYINGS.

State Publications: Part III.

WESTERN STATES AND TERRITORIES:

Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota, Dakota Territory, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, California, Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Indian Territory Alaska, Hawaii.

Compiled under the editorial direction of R. R. BOWKER

Embracing provisional bibliographies of the official publications of the above-named States and Territories, from their organization. While the difficulties of compiling a bibliography of this sort at the present time make absolute completeness impossible, every effort has been made to obtain accuracy to the extent covered, by means of the coöperation in most of the States of the State Librarians, State University librarians, or officials of State Historical Societies.

ALREADY PUBLISHED

PART I: NEW ENGLAND STATES.—Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut.

PART II: NORTH CENTRAL STATES.—New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin.

The complete work, exceeding 800 pages, will be furnished at $10.00. Subscriptions will be received only for the whole work.

☞ But 500 copies have been printed and there are no plates. Only 148 copies remain unsubscribed.

The attention of State Libraries, of the central public libraries, and of foreign libraries, is especially called to this bibliography, but it is also important to that larger number of libraries which cannot undertake to collect the State publications even of their own State and yet should be able to inform students and inquirers as to what is to be found in the publications of their own State and of other States. What New York and Massachusetts are doing in forestry, for instance, is of importance in all States and to foreign students of the subject.

THE NEW BOOK BY MISS TYNAN

"THERE was no one so well liked in all the county, by rich and poor, as

DICK PENTREATH

"He had a curious radiancy of aspect, which people felt without being able to define it. It was really the expression of his heart's good will toward all his fellow creatures. He was merry, he was friendly; he remembered the children's names and the old people's ailments. When he rode through the village of a morning, the women would come out of their cottages to their garden gates and lean across them to watch him out of sight. What a pity Mrs. Pentreath couldn't have lived to see Master Dick grow up."

But poor Dick has a lot of trouble in spite of his attractive personality, or perhaps on account of it. The story of his difficulties makes the most delightful book that Katherine Tynan has yet written. Besides the interest of the plot, the character-drawing is delightfully natural, and the dialogue quick and spirited. Everyone who read and enjoyed "The Dear Irish Girl," "Julia," and others of Miss Tynan's popular books will be more than pleased with "Dick Pentreath."
